Civic Plaza

Artist impression - Civic Plaza, Portlaoise

Work has commenced on the restructuring and landscaping of the open green area adjacent to Áras an Chontae. It is hoped that this will provide a much needed visual focus to the central pivotal location within the newly emerging civic and commercial hub of Portlaoise.

Significant parking capacity will be provided as part of this project, and the visually integrated manner of the project will serve to enhance the civic nature of the area rather than detract from it. The dual use approach will provide clear benefits for the entire community.

The car park will be a split level two deck structure with some parking spaces provided utilising the existing ground level, recess ground parking levels and upper deck parking spaces. The open civic space is designed to accommodate open air events and will include permanent and semi-permanent canopy structures. One additional feature of the Civic Plaza is the proposed introduction of computer- controlled water jet features.

FIRE IN THE HOME

Fires happen and unfortunately for some have fatal consequences. In 2005, 41 people in Ireland died from fires. This compares to 35 people in 2004.

In 2005, 38 out of 41 fire related deaths occurred in the home. These 38 fatalities occurred in 35 premises. In only 6 of these cases could it be established that there was a working smoke alarm present.

It is extremely important that every house has a working smoke alarm.

awarded to Richard Blake, RBHL and work commenced in July,2006. The new fire station was handed over to the Fire Service in March,2007. The cost of the project was €815,000.

New Fire Station in Abbeyleix

In 1991, the Fire Station in Abbeyleix was relocated to the ground floor of the Market House in the town. The first floor continued as Abbeyleix Library serving Abbeyleix and the surrounding area.

It was decided that the library facilities should be extended and modernised to meet current needs and that this would best be done in the Market House by utilising the entire building. This involved a major upgrade to the Market House.

At the same time, it was recognised that more modern facilities were needed for the Fire Service and preparations began for the relocation of Abbeyleix Fire Station to a new site on the approach road from Portlaoise.

A design team was approached consisting of Pat Fitzpatrick Ltd, Architect, Michael Turley & Associates, Quantity Surveyors and J.V. Tierney & Co., Electrical & Mechanical Engineers. The design brief was for a two bay fire station with washrooms, muster bay, lecture room and BA maintenance facility. Training facilities, including a ladder tower, underground water storage tank, hydrants and drill yard were also to be provided.

Consequent to the public tender procedure, the contract was

Tourism – Some of the main events over the Summer

A number of high profile events took place over the Summer months in Laois. Although the weather this Summer put a damper to ( and led to a cancellation of) a lot of festivals in the country, most of the events in Laois went ahead....

The World Fleadh

built festival village in the host town of Portlaoise. Marquee performances, 13 ceili's, music, song and dance master classes, workshops and demonstrations, a scheduled session trail encompassing 20 venues, a world food and craft fair, two festival clubs and a variety of other fringe entertainments to cater for all tastes and ages, all took place in Portlaoise. Over 600 performers took part in the festival over the seven days and nights of scheduled performances.

The festival showcased the excellent venues and central location that Portlaoise has to offer for a festival such as the Main Stage at the CBS grounds, the Town Stage at Fitzmaurice Plaza, the Dunamaise Arts Centre, Sky Venue, Egans etc. The Festival highlighted to other event organisers the easy access of these venues to each other and the fact that Portlaoise is the ideal event centre to host National Festivals in Ireland. It was great to see names such as Katie Melua, Deacon Blue, the Proclaimers, Duke Special, Carlos Nunez among others taking to the stage in Portlaoise. Gigs during the week in Egans, Sky Venue and the Dunamaise also attracted large numbers of festival goers. Supported by Laois County Council.

One of the biggest festivals in Laois this year was the World Fleadh. It took place from August 6th to August 12th in a custom

The International Garden Festival

The International Garden Festival took place from June through to September. This is a first for Ireland, and was a showcase for contemporary and inspiring garden design. The venue was Emo Court, in the heart of Ireland, and it featured 15 very different contemporary gardens, all fully maintained for the duration of the festival so that returning visitors can see how they mature and change through the season. Fringe events took place during the festival – over the August weekend, a number of family events and entertainment took place. Over the coming weeks, TV3's Gardening expert, Peter Dowdall is present to give his expertise. Also on Sept 9th, visitors will have an opportunity to sample the delicious food from an eclectic mix of ethnic and Irish producers, growers and farmers. Garden Tours were available and of course, tours of Emo Court House are also available to the end of September. ### Make Cents from Talking Rubbish Laois County Council has a new information booklet called 'Make Cents from Talking Rubbish' which provides householders with essential information on how to reduce, reuse and recycle in County Laois. This booklet will be a valuable tool for all householders who are interested in reducing their waste line.

Backyard Burning

Traditionally, Hallowe'en is associated with many customs including trick or treating, eating barnbrack (and if you're lucky finding a ring inside the cake) and playing hallowe'en games.

Another tradition is to light bonfires. According to Irish legend, if you dropped some of your hair into the bonfire, you would later dream of your future loved one. However, over the years, this 'tradition' has changed and people now use the hallowe'en bonfire to burn rubbish and hazardous waste like tyres, paint cans etc. But, the uncontrolled burning of these items is extremely bad for the environment and extremely dangerous for your health.

No-one wants to ruin the fun associated with Hallowe'en but the Environment Section of County Council wants everyone in Laois to Think Green Space, Not Fire Place!

Muck is Magic!

Did you ever wonder what to do with all the bits of left over fruit and vegetables that you have? These items can all be turned into a rich fertiliser by the magic of composting! Composting is an extremely natural process and not only is very good for the environment but is very good for your pocket as it reduces the amount of waste going into landfill and therefore, can reduce your waste bill!

Full details on how to turn spoil into soil can be obtained from Ann-Marie Kelly, Environment Awareness Officer on 057 867 4331 or by emailing amkelly@laoiscoco.ie.

Competition

To be in with a chance to win one of 3 household waste management kits (worth €100) consisting of:

3 Urba Plus 40ltr stackable units,
1 Household Hazardous Waste Storage Box,
1 Compost Bin & 1 Kitchen Caddy,
1 Trailer Cover

Laois Biodiversity Action Plan

Laois County Council is taking part in a national project to prepare Local Biodiversity Plans for each county, with the help of the Heritage Council.

Orchid-rich grassland near Stradbally

As part of Ireland's commitment towards implementation of the Convention on Biological Diversity, the Irish government published the National Biodiversity Plan in April 2002. This Plan sets out a series of actions that are intended to promote and assist in the conservation of Ireland's biological diversity, at a national and local level. One of the requirements of the National Biodiversity Plan is the production at local level of County Biodiversity Action Plans, which would highlight the importance of local biodiversity, the threats it faces and outline actions to be taken at local level to conserve and raise awareness of biodiversity.

The Laois Plan is being prepared by the Laois Heritage Forum, and the draft is due to be ready by November 2007. Comments and suggestions are welcome from members of the public, individuals and groups. If you have comments to make on the future of Biodiversity in Laois, or would like more information about the Biodiversity Action Plans, please contact the Heritage Office, Laois County Council - phone 057-867 4348, e-mail ccasey@laoiscoco.ie, www.laois.ie/heritage.

Addressing poverty and social exclusion in Laois

Cllr. John Moran, Cathoirléach officially launches the Laois Local Anti-Poverty Strategy in June 2007

Laois County Council has taken a leadership role in addressing social exclusion in the county. It is one of the first local authorities in the county to develop a Local Anti Poverty Strategy for its county. The strategy was developed in partnership with the agencies and organisations which are members of the Social Inclusion Measures Working Group of Laois County Development Board, including statutory agencies such as FAS, the HSE and the Department of Social and Family Affairs. A Steering Committee, chaired by the County Manager, Mr. Peter Carey was set up to oversee the process of developing the strategy. This committee included local representatives, members of Laois County Community Forum and representatives of groups who frequently experience social exclusion, such as people with disabilities and persons parenting alone.

The development of the strategy involved extensive consultation throughout the county. It looks at who is most likely to be affected by poverty and sets out to address the issues which will increase the risk factors for those particular groups. The range of groups considered included isolated older people, young people at risk and those who are educationally disadvantaged. The strategy also considered particular themes including the negative impact of money lending on low income families. A recurring theme of the strategy was the need for enhanced information services for vulnerable groups.

The process of implementing the strategy will take place over the next few years. It is hoped that it will have a positive impact in the county.

In tandem with this process, Laois County Council has looked at its own services to ensure that these also address disadvantage and are inclusive. It has developed and will implement an internal social inclusion strategy on a section by section basis.

Copies of these strategies are available from:

Libraries

On 29th May 2007, a new library in Mountrath was officially opened by the Chairman of Laois County Council, Cllr Michael Lalor.

The 220 sq. metre library is of significant educational, cultural and recreational benefit to the town. It is centrally located on Shannon Street and provides a wide range of services including books, audio books, foreign language books, internet, newspapers/magazines, music CD's, DVD's, online Ordnance Survey historic maps, etc. The library has already become a centre of activity in the town with over 600 registered members since opening day.

The chairman also launched the five-year Library Development Plan 2007-2011 which proposes further new libraries in Abbeyleix, Mountmellick, Portarlinton and Portlaoise. The plan also sets out objectives to deliver socially inclusive services as well as links with other agencies in the county and outside.

In January a new Mercedes Sprinter delivery van was purchased by the County Council for the library service to deliver book-stocks from headquarters to branch libraries in a more expeditious manner than before. The delivery van was fully grant-aided by the Department of Environment, Heritage and Local Government.

Rare Moth found during Heritage Week Bog Walk

Young visitors to Windsor Bog in Coolrain, Co Laois were very excited to find a large pink and purple caterpillar during a guided walk organised by Coillte as part of the celebration of Laois Heritage Week, in August this year. "We found a giant worm" was the cry that went up as the beast, measuring over four inches long and an inch thick, was carried through the group for inspection.

The animal turned out to be the larva of a Goat Moth, only ever recorded in Ireland in County Kerry. This moth gets its name from the strong odour given off by the caterpillar, which has been compared to the smell of a goat.

Heritage Week, takes place in August each year, is a national celebration of all the best of our local built and natural heritage. It is co-ordinated by the Heritage Council with the support of the Department of Environment, Heritage & Local Government. It is very significant that this rare element of Ireland's biodiversity was found in Laois during Heritage Week. We hope that this will encourage many other people to get out there and explore their local areas - you never know what you might find!

Water Metering Project

The Government's National Water Pricing Policy requires the charging of non-domestic consumers of water services. Local Authorities are now required to meter all non-domestic water supplies and to charge these consumers with the full cost of supplying water used and treating wastewater produced by them.

Laois County Council's Water Services Department has undertaken the installation of meters to all non-domestic users. The final phase of this metering project is now underway. The meter measures the amount of water supplied to all non-domestic premises. Installation of the meters is currently in progress in Mountmellick and Portlaoise will follow. During the works, the Council will endeavour to keep disruption to a minimum. Metering will allow all customers to be charged on the basis of water used – the less you use the less you pay.

Health & Safety

ROADWORKS - You may have noticed an increased number of road closures relating to roadworks of late when travelling through Laois and other counties. These new systems of work are as a direct result of some high profile road traffic accidents throughout other local authorities over the last number of years. In September of 2005, amid increasing concern about the adequacy of warning signs and temporary speed limits at roadworks, the Health & Safety Authority sent investigators to 104 sites across 29 of the main local authorities. Following these inspections, the H.S.A. wrote to all local authorities after highlighting safety concerns at sites directly under the Councils control. Significant concerns over poor traffic management at non-national roadworks sites operated by many local authorities and in particular, problems with signage were identified by the H.S.A. Report which was published at the end of 2005. The majority of Councils have agreed to change their management of roadworks and Laois County Council is no exception. Laois County Council feels that the safety of all road workers and road users e.g. cyclists, motorists, pedestrians is of paramount importance. However, as we all fall into one or other of the above mentioned categories, a system which largely depends on road closures may inconvenience us from time to time. This inconvenience is a small price to pay as it will afford road workers a safer working environment and in addition, it will lead to a reduction in the time taken to complete roadworks which can only prove beneficial to all concerned in the long term, so the message is to

BE PATIENT AND DRIVE SAFELY.

CIVIC PLAZA - In recent weeks you will have noticed a substantial restructuring and landscaping of the open green area adjacent to Aras an Chontae. It is hoped that this will provide a much needed visual focus appropriate to the central pivotal location within the newly emerging civic and commercial hub of Portlaoise. As part of this restructuring, significant additional parking capacity will be provided and the visually integrated manner of the project will serve to enhance the civic nature of the area rather than detract from it. The dual use approach will maximise the beneficial use in a manner which consolidates its central civic role within the urban structure of Portlaoise providing clear benefits for the entire community. The car park will be a split level two deck structure with some parking spaces provided utilising the existing ground level, recess ground parking levels and upper deck parking spaces. The open civic space is designed to accommodate open air events and would include permanent and semi permanent canopy structures to enhance its visual impact. One additional feature of the Civic Plaza is the proposed introduction of computer controlled water jet features. While this development may have some adverse impact on employees based in County Hall and Laois County Council employees visiting County Hall, it is felt that it will be well worth it to endure the inconvenience in the short term for the long term benefit to all.
